Australasian Tunnelling Society

The Australasian Tunnelling Society (ATS) was formed in 1972 and is jointly sponsored by the IEAust (Institution of Engineers, Australia) and AusIMM (Australasian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy).

ATS exists of unite members of the engineering and scientific professions, tunnellers, miners and suppliers in its membership. ATS is a member nation of the International Tunnelling Association (ITA). Chapters, through the efforts of volunteer members, provide activities in Brisbane, Sydney and Melbourne.

ATS provides Continuing Professional Development and networking by:

- Organised technical sessions on topics of interest to members
- A national conference every three years
- Seminars on particular aspects of tunnelling and underground construction
- Site visits to underground works
- Distribution of a technical journal containing information on local underground projects, twice annually
- Distribution of a newsletter twice annually

Student membership of ATS is free, and all students have access to the journals and newsletters, via the ATS website.
